welcome to

THE PEACE COLLEGE LOTUS

This year's edition of the Lotus is dedicated to change. It occurred to the staff that there were many changes taking place during the 1998-1999 academic year. Among these changes are the addition of the new academic building. The blueprints for the proposed layout of this building are featured throughout the Lotus, but especially on the cover. Some of the changes being made are not as noticeable as this one, however. Seemingly small things have been added that ultimately affect our lives as students in a big way. From the "Book Store Lady" to the new security officers the faculty and administration have gone through some change as well. The very people that we, as students, depend upon have developed into a more efficient working crew. Even the language used here at Peace has undergone a change. New President Laura Carpenter-Bingham is encouraging the student body to no longer call nonresident students "day students", but to call them "commuter students". It is believed that these changes will aid us in becoming a more unified campus. Peace College is Under Construction in every imaginable way, shape, and form.

BELOW- Who's that faculty member? Mr. King is one of the new faculty members to arrive on the campus this fall. He took over the position of PSRA adviser and teaches some gym classes. BELOW LEFT: Still keepin' us secure Security office Wesley makes his round one early morning. BELOW FAR LEFT. Is this a panty raid? Polly Nelson, Mary Katherine Tyson, Stephanie Cameron and Margie Flowers weren't all that close last year, but all that changed when they found themselves on the same hall. FAR BELOW Cars everywhere you look, and not a spot to park in. A major change this year is the arrival of a larger freshman class. With so many mobile students, it's harder than ever to find a parking spot. Maybe that's why they raised the fee to $75.

I think it's neat that they are going to try and expand but I don't feel it's necessary - we won't be a small school anymore and I kinda like that about Peace.

- Elizabeth Rawls

Campus Life

RAISING THE ROOF

There is never a dull moment at Peace College. No matter where you turn, or who you talk to, there is always something going on around campus. Throughout the year there are mixers, educationals, and club meetings. The dorms are a highlight of campus life. In their rooms, the ladies can be themselves, make friends and create lasting memories with those who live around them. Two other highlights of the year are the Fall Fest Semi-Formal and the Spring Fling. At the cocktail, students can show off their dates and dresses, and dance the night away. To get ready for this year's semiformal, there was a week long "spirit week" between the sister classes. There was a competitive spirit throughout campus, yet it was all in good fun.

INSET: Studying like there is no tomorrow! Carriedelle Wilson, Lori Wall, and Molly Stokes are getting ready for a Trig. test, bright and early the next morning.

Sittin' on Top of the World. Fall Fest is one of the annual traditions that makes Peace unique. The object is to bring sister classes together for a fun-filled competition. First-year students were paired with Juniors and Sophomores were paired with Seniors as each class struggled to score points in daily activities, such as a Polaroid Scavenger Hunt and a Midnight Relay Race around the Peace campus. The winners of each activity painted a section of the wooden Spirit Stick to celebrate their victory. In addition, students had a t-shirt, banner, and food drive contest. A Theme Dinner and Fall Fest Cocktail topped off the week's activities. The First-year/Junior classes made a valiant effort this year, but the Sophomore/Senior classes were victorious in the end. First-year student Katie Spangler said, "Although it's a competition, it's all fun and games that bring the four classes together."

Dressing up, going out to a fancy dinner, spending time with friends and dancing the night away made the Fall Cocktail memorable for me.

FAR LOWER LEFT: Mount up. Allison Rownd, Robin Freeman, Christina Alley, Lia Luisi, Jamie Brown, Audrey Warrenfeltz, Amanda Mayer, Barbara Iraqi and Emily Baldree have a crazy moment at Krispy Kreme while picking up their next clue in the scavenger hunt. FAR INSIDE LEFT: Anything for the team. Standing as the Statue of Liberty in the Peace fountain, Emily Gardner and Tori Mervyn help the Sophomore/Senior classes win the relay event. FAR BOTTOM LEFT: Work it girls! Jennifer Darrough and Stephanie McPherson show what they are made of in the swim relay. VERY TOP LEFT: Group photo. Some of the participants in the Midnight Relay take time out to get together and make a memory. TOP LEFT: Having a blast! Chelcy Dillon-Sherman, Veronica Everett, Ashley Edlin, Katie Spangler and Mauri Lybrand have a "girls only" photo before the dance. TOP SIDE: Do a little dance. Emily Costa, Vivian Adams, Candace Wilkes, Anne Marie Franklin, Kristina Cadena and others put on a show to get the next clue for the Freshman/Junior classes during the scavenger hunt. BOTTOM SIDE: Face first! During the midnight relay, Mary Margaret Drye and Catherine Medd participate face down in a messy but yummy nacho event. ABOVE: The finishing touch. Before their dates for the dance arrive, Lisa Carter finalizes details on the phone while roommate Courtney Taylor touches up her nails.

What a rip-roaring good time it all was! PSGA did it again with the wonderful Red Rose Ball. SGA member Vivian Adams could take most of the credit for the location and the party favors for the formal. She did a wonderful job and is greatly appreciated! After a great time at the Red Rose Ball which lasted into the wee hours of the morning at Lake Wheeler, people who weren't too pooped out could have a little bit more fun at the Spring Fling. PSRA did a wonderful job this year in coordinating the carnival-like activities. It was the first time in a long time that Peace students and staff members stayed for the three and a half hour extravaganza! There were all sorts of things to have fun at, the most noticeable was the Karaoke machine that Natalie Heath and Emily Feamster took advantage of for the theme song to "The Brady Bunch."

As the audience entered Kenan Recital Hall the participants in the 1998 Peace College dating game were getting ready backstage. The game works similar to many dating shows seen on TV. In each round three contestants compete against each other to get picked by another contestant of the opposite sex separated from them by a partition. The audience loved watching competitors sing, dance, answer questions, and walk like models in attempt to outdo each other.

Throughout the school year Peace hosts a number of mixers to provide social opportunities for students. Anyone can attend these mixers and they always prove to be fun. The themes range from shagging lessons to Halloween parties to Motown and meringue. Whatever the category, people are always busting a move (dancing enthusiastically).

I thought the dating game was hilarious! It was fun watching the contestants act so silly.

This year's stunt night was a hilarious competition between the classes. First-year students and Juniors were pitted against the Sophomores and

Seniors. "The Wizard of Peace" starring

First-year and Juniors was a traditional rendition of the Wizard of Oz with a Peace College twist. All of the well-loved characters were portrayed, from Dorothy to the Lollipop Kids. The Sophomores and Seniors gave a fabulous performance in "Back to the Future", a skit about Peace during the time of each skit, members of the sister classes were invited to come up on stage and dance with the cast members.

I enjoyed Stunt Night. It was definitely the most entertaining event I've been to so far this year."

Marie (a representative from Interact, a crisis center for rape and domestic violence) was very informative. It is helpful receiving information on abuse so if we get into that situation we will know how to react.

dorm life educationals

Girls just wanna' have fun. Living in a residence hall can be fun, stressful and adventurous. Living in a dorm you realize what procrastination and homesick really mean. However, you also make the best friends of your life in these dorms. These are the friends that you journey off to Miami Subs with at two in the morning when you should be studying. These are the girls that you not only live with but laugh with, cry with and goof off with. Freshman Maija Tabor recalls, "All the frantic late night escapades and of course Merideth's alarm clock. But I will remember most of all the ladies on first Ross." When you move into a dorm you find freedom but you also find unconditional friends. Attendance at one dorm educational per semester is required for all Peace College students. The educationals range from information on domestic violence to relaxing massage therapy. Most girls find educationals and dorm life memorable learning experiences.

The Student Government Association is an organization of student leaders, both elected and appointed, who create an avenue of change in which the individual concerns and opinions of the student body are represented.

The Student Christian Association provides students with opportunities for Christian fellowship and service on campus. This Association sets and maintains Christian standards of living in all phases of college life. Many activities, including mission trips, are offered through this organization.

S.T.A.R.S. is defined as Students Traveling Around Raleigh Sometimes. This association was created to give out-of-state students a feeling of community and a sense of belonging. Activities are planned for weekends and holidays since most out of state students find it harder to readily travel home.

S.W.A.T. is a volunteer student organization committed to ensuring that Peace College students receive quality health care. The purpose of this organization is to promote healthy lifestyles through health education and activities.

The Peace College Lotus provides an opportunity for students to contribute in an imaginative, creative manner to their school. The yearbook helps create an image of Peace College for prospective students and preserves memories of Peace for its alumnae.

The purpose of this organization is to provide interested students with information about the world of psychology. Members are provided with educational information, fun, and help with careers in the psychology field.

This organization provides opportunities of advancement in the career world through activities, speakers and events. The purpose is to give students a better feel for the working force after college.

This organization's purposes include supporting the all-around development of minority students and promoting multi-cultural awareness and appreciation of diversity. The Multi-Cultural Student Association provides opportunities of guest speakers and related events.

This organization explores the fields of Anthropology and History through field trips, lectures and fun activities. It also provides a service to the community using the two fields together.

T.A.C. is devoted to the advancement of young women intellectually, socially, culturally, and professionally. By exposing the student body of Peace College to the many capabilities of computers, T.A.C. prepares students for the future.

This association promotes the idea of good fun, good times and good friends without the use of excessive or illegal substances. The primary initiative of this organization is to educate our student body about responsibility in dealing with choices surrounding alcohol.

The International Club explores and promotes awareness of international cultures through sponsored activities and club meetings. The members interact with each other to gain a better understanding of their individual cultures.

The Prism is a student literary magazine published annually as a showcase for graphic design and creative writing. The college-oriented magazine contains poems, short stories and creative non-fiction from the entire student body and is designed each year by a Visual Communication major.

The Human Resource Society provides students with information about the world of human resources. It provides students opportunities to develop planning, organizing, and leadership skills in and around their lives.

BRICKS & MORTARBOARDS

Faculty, staff and administrators support the academic structure of Peace College. The academic structure of Peace consists of many components designed to ensure the success of all students. Keeping a low student-to-professor ratio, students receive individual attention in and out of the classroom. The Counseling Center provides guidance for personal and academic issues, along with seminars for career planning. Instructors in the Writing Center help students improve writing and grammar skills; the Center also provides tutors in any subject. Maintenance and Environmental Services keep the campus beautiful while Security works to ensure our safety. Every member of the academic structure works to promote the achievement of all students.

As Peace College develops and expands, so do the choices of majors offered to students. Peace has a range of degree programs and academic concentrations designed to prepare students for successful, rewarding careers. Three new majors were introduced in the fall of 1998: Visual Communication, English, and Music Performance. These three joined the six other baccalaureate and three associate degrees.

Majoring in communication has been the perfect choice, I have the best professors in the world! They've taught me about the many different communication styles people have.

- Lia Luisi

& majors

Peace College Biology majors utilize the latest technology and gain the tools needed to build a strong foundation in the biological sciences. The program prepares students for graduate study or entry-level positions. While learning basic biological skills, majors are exposed to unique opportunities and modern scientific equipment. Many field work experiences and internship options are offered to students.

The B.A. program in Business Administration combines professional course work and experiences within the classic framework of the liberal arts tradition. The Business Administration program at Peace College is designed around an MBA model, a strong defined core of classes with opportunities for selected study in a broad range of business related disciplines. The goal of the program is to develop future business leaders who have the moral development, decision making skills, and professional expertise to lead in the global economy of the next millennium.

Communication is the study of human message production. We spend 75% of our waking hours communicating: speaking, writing, and listening. Communication majors learn how to produce oral, written, and electronic messages more effectively. The result is a person who is professionally and personally successful. Through an active internship program and other opportunities to work with communication professionals, students get practical experience in one or more areas of Communication.

An English major provides excellent preparation for careers as diverse as law, ministry, medicine, business, banking, and government. In reading literature, students are studying life. They learn to expect and accept complexity and ambiguity. By encountering situations in fiction, poetry, and drama, students gain self-knowledge and reassess their beliefs. Because of its inclusive nature, an English major offers a strong foundation in the reading, thinking, and writing skills preparatory for graduate programs, the marketplace, and a fulfilling life.

The Human Resources Major prepares students for a variety of challenging careers. Ours is one of only two HR degree programs in the state and is successful in placing all of its students in professional jobs upon their graduation. Peace HR students are members of the Society for Human Resource Managers, the most prestigious national organization of the profession. Graduates work in areas such as Training, Recruitment, Compensation, International HR management, Leadership and Teams, Performance management, Organizational Socialization and Development. PICTURE: The 1998-99 HR majors

Peace College's Liberal Studies major provides the strong academic preparation that a student needs whether she wishes to go to professional or graduate school or straight into a career in areas such as politics and public service, non-profit work, editing, business and education. Students may opt to specialize in two areas by completing a double concentration, minor, or specialization. The rigorous nature of the course work develops essential skills in the areas of critical thinking, reading, writing, and research. Internships designed to fit each student's needs as well as International study programs supplement a superior education.

The recently added four-year Music Performance degree will prepare students for graduate school or for establishing their own teaching studios. Combining the best features of the Bachelor of Arts in music and the Bachelor of Music degree, it is a Liberal Arts degree designed with special emphasis in performance.

The Psychology major gives students knowledge and skills that will help them find an excellent job or pursue graduate study. The major helps students explore career goals through a variety of exciting internships (over 50 and growing). In addition, students have the opportunity to conduct their own research and travel with professors to conferences and other places of interest. PICTURE: Students on a field trip to Washington, D.C.

A Bachelor of Arts degree in Visual Communication will lead to professional roles in all areas of contemporary society. The program takes advantage of the current Communication B.A. program which offers many courses which supplement the Visual Communication degree allowing students more opportunities to explore multimedia and other digital-related programs. By the time a student graduates, she has developed the skills necessary for successful client relationships and has prepared a portfolio of finished work.

An Associate of Arts Degree is planned for those students who wish to work toward a bachelor's degree as well as for those who wish to terminate their education with the Associate of Arts degree. The curriculum is flexible enough so that those transferring to another senior college may choose the appropriate courses as required and still have opportunity for a wide selection of elective subjects.

Students who desire to major in music must audition before the music faculty for acceptance and placement in the music degree program. Completion of the requirements for the Associate of Fine Arts in Music degree will prepare the student to continue work toward the Bachelor of Arts in Music Performance degree.

Students interested in pursuing certificate or professional degree programs in nursing, pharmacy, medical technology, radiologic science, dental hygiene, occupational therapy or other health or allied health areas and students pursuing any major within the field of biology should consider the Associate of Science degree. The curriculum is designed to be flexible enough to meet all necessary requirements for admission to any of these programs prior to transfer to the professional programs.

Peace students go globetrotting. Every year Peace offers opportunities for students to study in a foreign country. Students who go on an international study attend lectures, tour historic landmarks and go shopping! They can earn up to three credit hours by attending one of the study abroad programs. Last summer Peace women journeyed to various destinations: England, Austria, Mexico, and France. Traveling and studying abroad allows students to witness daily life in a different culture. Bridget Brantley says, "[Study Abroad] gives students a unique sense of independence and of accomplishment. It's my wish that every Peace student could participate."

- Audrey Warrenfeltz

As a way of recognizing students with outstanding academic performance, Peace has four honor societies.

Each society has its own qualifications and specializations. The three foreign language societies require students with strong academic profiles, high GPA's in the language and who have taken advanced level courses in that subject. Sigma Delta Mu is a Spanish honor society for two-year colleges and the first three years of four-year colleges and universities. Peace College is the national headquarters for this society. Sigma Delta Pi is a national honor society for four-year colleges and universities. The Peace College chapter is Upsilon Beta. As part of the society's service to the Peace family, members offer free Spanish tutoring to students in need. Sigma Delta Pi also helps organize on-campus events in conjunction with Sigma Delta Mu and the Multicultural Student Association. The French society, La Cenacle de Paix honors french students who want to learn more about France and its culture. Members must demonstrate a seriousness in their studies. Phi Theta Kappa is a national honor society for junior colleges. Gamma Phi is the Peace College chapter. Members must possess outstanding moral character and good citizenship as determined by the faculty.

Academic field trips. Peace students pack into planes, trains, and automobiles -and sometimes on a ferry- for academic field trips. For a couple of days, students trek around a metropolitan area or the great outdoors site seeing and writing in a journal to document their experiences and observations for credit hours. Peace offers academic field trips relating to many different courses of study. Art students can travel to a major city to tour museums or art galleries experiencing different art styles. Theatre enthusiasts have the opportunity to travel to places where they can attend plays, musicals, or take backstage tours. For Ecology fans, trips are planned to places around NC to observe the environments. The Hispanic community Class offers a trip to Florida to experience authentic meals and the culture students have studied in a semester long class.

BRICKS & MORTARBOARDS

Say cheese! For years most of us have been practicing taking our school photograph and we have become professionals at it. There is always that one picture that you're not too thrilled about. This is the picture where you have one hair sticking up in the wrong place, your eyes are shut or you have an odd look on your face. However, these school photos are worth it because they will serve as memories to you, your friends and family. Students demonstrate the famous "shut eye" shot, at the top is Rebecca Thrasher, third from top is Catherine Boylin, at the bottom is Pamela Widlak. The second from the top, Laurie D. Bryant shows her best smile for the camera. Fourth from the top Catherine Medd is posed just right.

Outstanding sophomores

Kim Crabtree is this year's Miss Peace.

Miss Peace is an award bestowed on a candidate nominated by other students. To be eligible for the title of Miss Peace a student must be active in the Peace College community -academically, socially, and spiritually. Kim Crabtree is also an outstanding sophomore and the president of the Sophomore Class. To be named Miss Peace is the highest honor a student can be given by her peers.

Although a great deal of our time is spent in classes It's what students do when we are not working that counts the most. Whether girls are out dancing, dating, shopping, or just hanging out, those are the memories we will keep forever.

FRAMING OUR TALENTS

Showing Off. Peace students are given the opportunity in many different areas to showcase their talents and abilities. Whether it is painting a picture, performing in a play, singing with the Chamber Singers, or dancing as a Peace Pacer, each woman is able to show off what she is best at doing. These creative endeavors express the energy and enthusiasm of the Peace student body. The many opportunities that are available allow students to develop their creative talents in new and exciting ways.

Do-Re-Me. Not many people have the talent to get in front of people and sing. But that is not the case with Peace College's Chamber Singers. This is a group of 15 to 20 talented young ladies who travel all over North Carolina and even Europe to share their beautiful music. Under the direction of Jim Smith and with the accompaniment of Virginia Vance, the Chamber Singers rehearse long and hard to perfect their musical skills. This past summer they had an extended trip to Europe to perform in various places. The Chamber Singers are the voice of Peace College and they are regarded with the utmost respect by students and faculty for all the hard work and dedication that they put forth to make the group what it is today.

The way I see it . . . I have a passion for music. Music is my high, I live and breathe it.

The sound of music coming from the recital hall can be heard when ever Kilburn has one of his students in his studio pounding on the keys or Smith has one of his voice students singing like a canary. It's hard to track them down, they all seem to be on the run or gathering information for their next music recital. If you want to hear Jamie Surgeon singing her song, all you need to do is pay attention in the cafeteria, she is almost always singing or humming to some tune.

Dancing the night away. The Peace Pacers are a group of women who perform for the public at various times of the year. They are under the direction of Katherine Arnott. These girls are given the opportunity to choreograph and perform their own creations. They held a Spring performance at Peace which was open to the students, faculty, and the public. BACKGROUND: Lori Bowes does some last minute directing before the Pacers perform. INSET: Meredith Berryhill performs her solo at the Spring Concert.

Art is a part of every culture, here at Peace we see it in several of its forms. From Theatre and Dance, to Visual Arts all are available through the college. Here students can use a variety of outputs to demonstrate their thoughts and feelings. Professors David Simonton, Woody Holliman, and Carolyn Parker provide classes in Photography, Typography, Graphic Design, Drawing and Painting. Through these classes Peace is surrounded in Visual Arts that enrich our daily lives. Students in these classes have aided the Theatre, Music and Dance groups as well as Peace as an Institution in displaying the outstanding qualities of the College.

Art is something that enriches our lives whenever we see it. It is something that should be cherished not discarded, even when you think your drawing isn't anything special.

Not all works done by the students are for class.

Pictured at the right is a Summer Session form that was created by senior Jennifer Roberts for Sherri Boykin through her internship here at Peace. During her internship she has been able to get an idea for what it will be like for her to work at a company as their graphic designer.

Jennifer was also the student that created the Graceland poster that advertised the fall play, the Pacers dance poster that advertised their spring recital, the cover and inside design of the Prism, as well as the Alumnae Weekend brochure.

ABOVE: What a mess! For anyone who's never been in the studio in third Pressley, this is what it looks like. Always a little messy, you can tell that the students in the studio art classes have been hard at work by looking at all of the unfinished as well as finished pieces that decorate the walls, shelves, easels and the floor!

BELOW: Formulating their plans are Carey Dawson, as Henry, and Liz Kieffer. BELOW CENTER: The Mute just finished tying the symbolic ribbon on Luisa's wrist in remembrance of El Gallo/The Bandit's grasp. Vadra Groce played the role of Luisa, Anya Broderick played the role of The Mute, and Meghann Jacobs played the role of Bellamy. BOTTOM: Everyone sing along! Bellamy and Hucklebee, played by Mary Katherine Tyson, join together in a vegetable song that describes how vegetables are better than children. These two fathers are describing how they always have problems with their children but never with their turnips. BACKGROUND: To express their tender love, Luisa and Matt reach out for one another in a kiss. Vadra Groce, as Luisa, and Brian McMurray, as Matt, find one another over the wall that their fathers built.

The Fantasticks inspired widespread acclaim when it premiered at Leggett Theater. The story revolves around a young couple set up to fall in love through their fathers' secret planning. The plan eventually backfires, but in the end, everything works out between the two families. The hard work of rehearsals and the determination to put on an excellent show paid off for these young actors. Audiences were overwhelmed with the amount of talent displayed by Vadra Groce and Blake Mc Murray. Thanks to the director Kenny Gannon, the diligent actors, and the backstage crew, this performance turned out to be a major hit! Congratulations to all!

Another masterpiece performed by Peace students!

Graceland chronicles the complicated lives of two women who want to be the first to enter Graceland. One of them is a middle aged woman named Bev, played by Peace actress Mary Katherine Tyson. The other is a younger, more attractive woman named Rootie, played by Peace actress Carey Dawson. Throughout the play the two argue over who is going to be the first to go through the gates, each believing she is the better, more deserving fan. At the end the two become good friends. Congratulations to the actresses and stage crew for another wonderful job!

TOP LEFT: Me first! Bev wants to be the first to visit Graceland after all, she's more deserving . . . isn't she? I love the theatre because it's like another world. We spend months putting together a show that we hope will touch someone's life. Dr. Gannon calls that a miracle.

Time and the Conways was a dramatic presentation of a family which showed the difficulties they went through and how they overcame them. The Conways displayed what many families go through even today. This play was heartwarming to all who saw it. The final 1998-1999 production of Dreaming In Color showcased many talented and new students. This play dealt with the life of college students and some of the problems and triumphs they go through during their lives.

POWER DRILLS

Heart and Soul. There have been some exciting changes within Peace College's sports program. There have been some valuable additions to the coaching staff and another exciting sport is on the roster this year. Whether you are a sports fan or not, you cannot help but feel the school spirit: we scream and yell for our roommate, a classmate, or someone we have just seen, around campus. There is just one more thing to scream about. Whether you are a sports fan or not, you cannot help but feel the excitement of the girls representing our school. Sports are a valuable commodity to a school and nothing beats the feeling of winning the BIG game for your school. Many students will never know the bonds that a team holds, but for the girls who play the game, there is nothing like it. Though they may graduate and move on, they will never forget the experiences and lasting memories that were made.

Communication, teamwork, and dedication. These are qualities possessed by the Peace Pride Volleyball team. This year's team worked hard on improving these skills throughout the season. While being coached by Debbie Edwards, they dedicated themselves to learning to communicate and work together better on the court. As a result the team has improved a great deal over the year and shows excellent promise for the next season. Although there were some injuries, the athletes had a very successful season and will no doubt do even better next year.

A' am nke io other. The basketball team has had a record of 7 wins and 16 loses, but this team has stuck together through it all. Coach Debbie Edwards has been with the Pride Team for four years and after one year established the Pride Team in NCAA Division III play. She has had the help of Assistant Coach Sheilah Newton for two years. Even though the team is losing two of their players next year, due to graduation, they will never lose the bond that has been created within every single player on the court.

Under a new coach. Under the instruction of an enthusiastic new coach, Vicki Dieleman, the tennis team has had a productive year. Coach "D" came to us from South Africa and has brought all her tennis knowledge with her. In their fall season, they played in several matches and two tournaments. One of the tournaments was in memory of Peace College's own, Ruth Hopkins, a former coach who was inducted into the NCJAA Women's Hall of Fame back in 1994. The team has worked hard all year and greatly improved with each match that they play.

Welcome Softball team to the Peace College sports arena once again! After several years PC once again has a softball team. It took a lot of effort from the team members and the coaches to make it happen, but it looks like it may be here to stay!

Peace College ended fast pitch softball with a 2-18 record. This is a great accomplishment for a team starting from scratch. The players made is an exceptional season through their dedication and love for the sport. Peace was not only able to grab a couple of wins, but to gain the respect of their opponents for future games. Next year will be even better for Peace since the first year stress is over. Good luck to all the players in the future games and thank you for being there to get Peace softball underway.

BRICKS & MORTARBOARDS

Part of college life is the fun we have when school is over. When evening comes on Friday, the ideal college social scene comes to life. Parties start up and Peace girls can be seen wearing white button-up shirts and tight black pants to almost every one. Sometimes the school provides other activities for weekend fun, and sometimes we just go on break and make our own fun. From rafting, mystery trips, coffee talk, and spring break, to just hangin' with your friends, it's all here!

TOP: All aboard! PSRA sponsored a wonderful weekend of white water rafting fun! Many people have never been out of their cozy little corner of the world to see how "the other half" lives. This is not true of ten Peace girls, who traveled out of their comfort zone to Port-Au-Prince, Haiti, over the summer. These ten were not the only ones going; there were fifty-two more students and leaders from UNC, NCSU, ECU, Meredith, Wake Tech, Barton, and Duke. Some had been before, but for many, this was their first trip to a third-world country. There was a considerable amount of preparation and much to learn before they would depart. Extensive readings, immunization shots, and a lot of prayer went into this trip. Even though the students were well-trained, nothing could prepare them for what they would see when they stepped off the plane. While the students were there, they learned things about the culture and history of the country, and did volunteer work at Mother Theresa's Missions for Charities Orphanages, Wings of Hope, and City Soleil, which is one of the poorest parts of Haiti. At these places, the students gave back massages to the patients, played with the children, and basically made the patients comfortable. The trip lasted nine days and in that short stay, the students' and leaders' lives were changed for a lifetime.

ABOVE: A common sight looking off of St. Joseph's Home for the Boys. Many people in Haiti live in houses without the comfort that we in the States do. They do not have running water, 24 hour electricity, or even carpet on their cement floor. INSET: Not an unusual sight on the streets of Haiti. It was not an uncommon sight to see children on the streets selling items or watching their parents sell things. TOP LEFT: Just Chillin'. Carime Westerweel, Johanna Larsson, and Anne Kluppel had never before enjoyed the sweet taste of graham cracker, marshmallow, and chocolate squeezed together.

"All forward!" was the command issued by the guides as the rafters started down the Nantahala River. The sixteen Peace students accompanied by the PSRA advisor, Mr. King, drove to their camp site at Turkey Creek in late September. After their first night on rocky ground they set off for the Nantahala River where they were met by Coop, the River Guide. After a brief training session on what to do if you have an "out of boat experience" they loaded up on a bus and set off for the beginning of the rafting trip. The two hour rafting trip was filled with thrills and chills. Several Peace rafters fell into the frigid water. Some of the things lost to the river during the trip included a pair of Natalie Heath's pants; Cindy Wilson's shoes; and, Paulette Morrison's hat! At the end of the day as everyone was gathered around the camp fire, rafters enjoyed rest, relaxation and s'mores.

Girls having fun. The weekends are a time for everyone to relax and enjoy some time away from the books. Some use this time to go home and visit with old friends and family, while others venture off to State or Chapel Hill.

Students have the opportunity to do many exciting things even if they remain on campus. Sometimes there are activities arranged for the students to participate in such as a trip to the zoo or just relaxing in their room watching television and ordering a pizza.

Withdrawing from the hustle and bustle of Peace, students retreat to Montreat. Sponsored by PSCA and First Presbyterian Church, students relaxed for one weekend at Montreat, a college and retreat area located in Black Mountain, NC. Spending time with other youth from Duke, NCSU, NC Central, Meredith and Chapel Hill, Peace women hiked along trails, played games in an open field and then ended the day with a vesper service. For the Sunday service, Peace students contributed to the ceremony by leading the crowd in singing songs. Annette Mayhew said the weekend of games and nightly discussions helped everyone become more familiar with one another.

Where in the world are they taking us? Mystery trips are planned by Linda Sparrow and Karen Bass monthly. Peace students are instructed where to meet and when, then they are off. The students have no idea where they will end up because it is a "mystery trip." These fun and paid for trips give students an opportunity to get off campus and relax. The trips are full of excitement and anticipation of where you will end up and who you will meet. Many students see each other around campus but seldom have time to get to know one another. Mystery Trips allow girls to have fun, relax, and get to know each other. All together mystery trips went to The Raleigh Grand movie theatre, Planetarium, Ben and Jerry's, Pullen Park, and putt-putt.

Day students. Peace College has a secret group of students that can be found in the Belk Lounge in between classes. Who are they? They are the Day Students who get to lead two lives; one in Peace and one in the real world. Since the Day Students have busy schedules, they plan a get-together called "Coffee Talk". On Friday nights, Commuters can be found meeting at a local coffee shop to chat over whatever is on their minds. The New World Music Cafe is a favorite of the Peace Commuters! So, who is the genius who plans everything? The commuter crew has a representative that speaks on their behalf in student government and plans activities. One activity that occurs every year is the held during the Christmas season, when Commuters decorate a Christmas tree with hand made ornaments and invite all students to come up the stairs in Belk to make a personal ornament.

Holidays at Peace College

are celebrated with much enthusiasm.

Students enjoy both the timeless traditions of academia and the breaks from school. Whether we're on Fall, Christmas, Spring, Easter Break, or just a regular weekend someone is always having fun somewhere. Many trips were taken this year all over the United States and there was also lots of just hanging out at home. As Peace College has a large number of out-of-state students this year, sometimes holidays can be the only chance these girls have to spend with their families and friends from home.

FIRM FOUNDATIONS

"Tradition!" It is these firm foundations that hold the school together and keep us looking forward to the future while still remembering the fun of the past. The events covered in this division have been around for some time, and aren't going anywhere anytime soon. It is with fond memories that you look back as a senior or alumnae at the first time you and your family attended Parents Weekend or any of the Family events. Who can forget the first time they received their Peanut's name or waited at the Peanut Dinner to find out who somehow knew them so well. The most exciting tradition by far has been graduation, and now with the arrival of the BA we are adding our own style to the traditions of Peace. Who knows how the color of the gowns this year will affect the graduates of tomorrow?

Look how smart I am! Many students strive to make good grades and do the best that they can. It is only a select few that actually get recognized for their outstanding work during the school year. There is a chapel dedicated to honoring those who do superior work in certain courses. The head of each department gives the awards to the deserving individual and all who are in chapel applaud the student for their excellent work. Though there were only one or two awards given in each course, there are many students who do great in that particular class, but only a select few actually get the award.

Keeping with traditions. Every year the freshmen go through the Academic Convocation. They get dressed in their white dresses and file into the Recital Hall. This year they were welcomed by Dr. Weigant. Then the students who hold scholarships and who were Valedictorians and Salutatorians in their high school were recognized. Also the Leadership Scholars were recognized. Dr. Wolf gave the address to the students after they sang "America the Beautiful". Then the students and faculty sang the Peace College Alma Mater. After it was all said and done, many students went to the front lawn and took pictures to capture the day forever.

Sharing the good times for Family Weekend. Parents joined their daughters for a weekend in October to "Share the Good Times". After registration, parents chatted with faculty and staff to learn about the many opportunities offered by Peace. Along the brick pathway to the Recital Hall, students from the Music and Theatre Departments gave brief performances showcasing their talents. The day reached its climax with a barbecue cookout on the front lawn and live beach music provided by The Embers. Bringing the festivities to an end, a trolley carried families on a tour of Historic Oakwood and the Governor's Mansion, opened especially for Peace College.

Family ties. There were three family oriented events this year at Peace College. The Mother / Daughter weekend was held November seventh through the eighth. Over the weekend the mothers and daughters went to Amazing Glaze to paint, the movies and had a scrumptious lunch and dinner. Breakfast and Chapel was Sunday morning. Father / Daughter weekend occurred February sixth through the seventh. The fathers arrived for dinner with their daughters on Saturday night. They proceeded to a sock hop dance in the gym where they danced the night away. Breakfast and chapel service was held on Sunday morning. Little sister weekend occurred later on in the year on March twentieth till the twenty first. Peace College big sisters took their little sisters ice skating, on a Easter egg hunt and for a dip in the pool, all in one weekend. The little sisters age ranged from five years old to teens. Spending time together is among students but even more so with family.

I enjoyed father daughter weekend because it gave me a chance to dance with my dad. I loved spending quality time with him!

"Get Your Peanuts!" was the call heard ringing through the

hundred and fifty students, faculty and administration all signed up to participate in this years activities. The week went on as usual with Peanuts made, bought, and baked gifts for each other. When first asked about her Peanut gift Beth Woodson excitedly answered, "I got the coolest thing..." It came as no surprise that she finds the giving of the gifts as fun as the receiving of them.

Her eyes lit up with anticipation as she described her hopes that her Peanut enjoyed what she was giving her. Part of the excitement of Peanut Week is sneaking around and placing your gift on the table without letting your Peanut see. It was easy to tell if your Peanut was someone who knew you or had been checking up on you; however, to some it came as a real surprise when they discovered on Thursday who had them as a Peanut!

Bridget knows all about being a good Peanut, she always tries to provide fun things for her person. The search for your gift was part of the fun of Peanut Week. BELOW: Everybody get crafty! It's always fun to jazz a gift up with the aid of paint pens! Kim Crabtree thought is a wonderful time to get crafty when she bought her Peanut, Vadra Groce, a potted plant. FAR BELOW: Ooo, who's that for? It's always fun to sneak a peak at other peoples gifts for ideas for your own Peanut!

Graduates and their families gathered for Peace's 127th commencement exercises. Faculty and graduates emerged from Main with the sounds of a traditional bagpipe march. Dr. Sturdivant began the ceremony with an invocation and President Bingham followed with words of welcome. The Peace College Choir and Chamber Singers entertained the crowd by singing selected anthems. Continuing the graduation service, President Bingham introduced the commencement speaker, William R. Johnston, the President and Chief Operating Officer of the New York Stock Exchange. Finally, the much anticipated event of awarding the degrees commenced as Dr. Yarbrough presented the candidates and President Bingham gave out the diplomas with a congratulatory handshake. Graduates recessed to the fountain to sing Peace's Alma Mater.

The presentation of the Associates degree is the most time-honored tradition maintained by Peace College.

Each graduate wears a white dress and carries a bouquet of red roses in her white-gloved hands. Kim Crabtree, Sophomore Class President and Miss Peace, gave remarks from the Sophomore Class, inspiring us all "To Succeed". President Bingham assisted by Peace College Chaplain Rev. Marnie Crumpler and Sherry Cameron Worth '64, Chair of the Board of Trustees, presented each of the eighty-seven graduates with a bible as well as her diploma. With an Associates degree, graduates have the choice to either continue on at Peace working towards a Bachelors degree, transferring to another educational institution, or entering the work-force.

Graduation

This year's BA graduating class represented the ever growing four year degree program at Peace College.

Fifty-one promising women received their diplomas, a bible, and a single rose from Peace College, which has been their home for at least four years.

The presentation of degrees was preceded by remarks from the President of the Student Government Association, Senior Stephanie McPherson. She instructed the graduating class of 1999 to continue learning because "knowledge is power."

Throughout the year Peace has witnessed some unforeseen changes. Many of the beloved administration and faculty members have decided that this was to be their last year serving the student here. We are sorry to see them go. These were the people that held the student body as well as the college together.

Where ever they wind up, we want them to know that they will be forever in our hearts.

INSET: Forever friends. It is at the end of the year that people say good-bye, not to graduates but room mates and friends. Since their freshmen year here at Peace Teresa Morris and Billie Vanderford have been best friends, and this year they were room mates. Now they will have to say good-bye. Though she is leaving us, Teresa has promised to come visit often.
